

What is Claimed is:

- sub
A 7
1. A slide show system, comprising:
 - a control unit obtaining address information
 - 5 defined on an information network according to a predetermined output sequence; and
 - an interface unit transmitting obtained address information to a remote side, and for instructing an output of information corresponding to the transmitted
 - 10 address information.
 2. The slide show system according to claim 1, further comprising
 - a storing unit storing a correspondence
 - 15 relationship between one or more pieces of address information and a sequence number representing the output sequence, wherein
 - said control unit determines address information notified to the remote side by referring to the
 - 20 correspondence relationship.
 3. A slide show system, comprising:
 - a browser unit obtaining information by using
 - address information defined on an information network;
 - 25 an interface unit receiving address information

a control unit notifying said browser unit of received address information, and for instructing an output of information corresponding to the notified address information.

referring to a correspondence relationship between one or more pieces of address information defined on an information network, and a sequence number representing a predetermined output sequence;

instructing the remote side to output information corresponding to transmitted address information.

receiving from a local side address information corresponding to a current sequence number, which is obtained from a correspondence relationship between one or more pieces of address information defined on an information network, and a sequence number representing a predetermined output sequence;

notifying a browser of received address 5 information; and

instructing the browser to output information corresponding to notified address information.

Add
A17

004010" 2542460